

A large that contain ornaments and other valuable objects, carvers formerly fashioned treasure boxes that were hung from the rafters of houses to keep their precious and powerful contents out of reach, Used in ancient times.

Average people will hide their valuables underground in tin cans, glass jars, cloth sacks or whatever to be retrieved during a time of need. Sometimes the people who hide these precious items die and their valuables become lost. These hidden valuables are considered a hoard or a cache, and they are being found all over the country by treasure hunters